

PRO

CON

Both an all-powerful, all-loving God exist, and suffering exists

All-powerful God can create any world He wants, and He prefers a world with free will

If free will exists, then evil and suffering are its possible consequences

The atheist has the burden of proof of demonstrating that :

1. It's impossible that Free will exist
2. It's impossible that God may have a good reason to permit suffering

It's logically impossible for God and suffering to exist

Suffering exists

Therefore, God does not.

If God is willing to prevent evil, but not able, then He is not all powerful

If God is able to prevent evil, but not willing, then he is not good

But if God is both willing and able, How can evil exist?